SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY*Companion in Crime Says He Was Forced to Participate
By Death Threat.

Robert McClarin, 19, who has served four terms in the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, will enter a new Ohio penal institution as the result of his entering a plea of guilty to an indictment charging him with automobile theft when arraigned Thursday afternoon before Judge J. W. Adkins.

McClarin, who "pulled" his first robbery at the age of 11, recently confessed to a series of robberies, safe blowings, hold-ups and auto thefts during the past three years, and while the April grand jury was in session, was one of the ring leaders in an attempt to escape from the Pickaway-co jail by digging a hole through the floor into the dungeon.

CHARGES DEATH THREAT

He pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with the theft of an automobile of W. F. Van-Gundy, Circleville, which he said he used one night to hold-up a filling station near Columbus, burglarize another near Chillicothe and rob a store in Circleville.

Maynard Dearth, 18, implicated in six robberies and auto thefts with McClarin, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with burglary and larceny in connection with the robbery of the E. E. Root store. A companion in that robbery, Benjamin Haddock, 17, has been sent to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster.

Judge Adkins deferred sentencing Dearth when the youth declared that he had committed his crimes under the threat of death from McClarin whom he said always carried a revolver. Dearth said that McClarin's recent attempt to break jail resulted when he learned that Dearth was going to "tell all" to the court.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Frank Jenkins, 21, pleaded not guilty to two counts of an indictment charging him with forgery and uttering and publishing a forged check. Jenkins is alleged to have cashed a check for $9.50, which the name of Loring Hoffman had been forged, at the Shelby & McCrady poolroom. Attorney Paul E. Adkins was appointed by the court to defend him.

Roy Rogers, 41, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with burglary and larceny in connection with the theft of 11 chickens from Mary E. Foreman, Bloomfield, and not guilty to an indictment charging him with petit larceny in connection with the theft of a storage battery from William L. Tustin.

Ed. Thomas.

How to get out and enjoy out-of-doors was told to the Rotarians at their weekly meeting Thursday by Ed Thomas, of Columbus. Mr. Thomas, who is a nature enthusiast by profession and a lawyer by a vocation, so he stated, believes that part of the week has been taken from him when he does not get out on Saturday afternoons and Sundays to enjoy nature.

Mr. Thomas has broad experience of nature, particularly as a bird lover and writes for the Columbus Dispatch Sunday edition. He stated that Pickaway-co abounds in some of the unusual things in nature's life, in flowers and birds.

He has spent many joyous hours roaming over the prairies and hills with local lovers of nature, and found things that are new and interesting. He told of the habits of the birds and how they migrate to the most southern points in the winter, some traveling as high as 500 miles in a single day.

Some of them migrate south and disappear entirely until the following spring, and where they live during this interval no one has ever been able to discover. How birds find their way to their summer and winter haunts is something no body can tell and can only be attributed to inherited instinct. For often times the young birds leave before their parents and these places are new to them he said. Mr. Thomas commended Dr. Beales for his consideration in having his wonderful collection of bird eggs find a place in the Ohio State Museum, when it would have been possible for him to have received a large sum elsewhere for such a collection.

Needed improvements in the Circleville fire department will be discussed by R. D. Each business man of Circleville is urged to hear Mr. Criswell as the Ohio Inspection Bureau declares that it suggested recommendations are not followed here the insurance rates in the city will be boosted.

The findings of the Ohio Inspection Bureau are given in a letter to Mayor B. T. Hedges. This letter, in part, follows:

25 SLAYINGS
MARKING LAW
ENFORCEMENT*Sixteen Civilians and Nine
Dry Raiders Lose Lives
In 15 Months.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Enforcement of federal prohibition cost 25 lives during the last 15 months.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman today submitted an official report of the killings to Under Secretary Ogden L. Mills. Twenty-three persons were killed incident to raids in 1928 while the other two lives were taken during the first three months of this year.

Comparative figures for 1927 were not given in the report, but Lowman declared the reduction in fatalities was great. He attributed the decrease in the number of slayings incident to enforcement of the dry law throughout the country to the treasury department's rule against promiscuous flourishing, display and use of fire arms by prohibition agents.

9 RAIDERS KILLED

In the 15 months 16 civilians were killed and nine government operatives met death in the drive to dry up United States. As a result of raids and other enforcement activities 17 citizens died, the victims of bootleggers and others.

Two mounted inspectors of the customs patrol were slain by smugglers, but no civilians met death at the hands of agents of that bureau.

Five civilians were killed by members of the coast guard. The coast guard was the only enforcement branch that did not have fatal casualties within its ranks as a result of prohibition operations.

OFFICERS EXONERATED

In all cases against government agents which have reached the courts and have been terminated the officers were exonerated from criminal liability, according to the report.

The two deaths this year involved the drowning of Leon Mangray a seaman aboard the British schooner, Im Alone, which was sunk by a coast guard cutter in the Gulf of Mexico, and that of Joseph O. McGuire, of Laramie, Wyo. The report showed the latter was shot to death by Agent Charles F. Patterson, deputized by Sheriff Edwin A. Bailly, of Wyoming, to assist in capturing McGuire, who had committed a murder and was resisting arrest.

RATES MAY BE RAISED

"In consideration of the above, we must inform you that unless your community corrects the more obvious of the present deficiencies and generally strengthen its fire fighting facilities, a poorer insurance classification will be in order at the time of the next rating. The recent re-grading of your town shows that it falls well over into the next poorer class. We, of course, are willing to grant you a reasonable amount of time to make the necessary improvements.

"However, if you do not avail yourself of the opportunity, a re-rating will be in order at a poorer classification, which will mean a general increase of rates throughout the community."

AKRON IS DAMAGED BY RAIN AND WIND

AKRON, O., April 5.—Damage estimated at $100,000 resulted from high winds, a torrential downpour of rain and lightning in Akron early today.

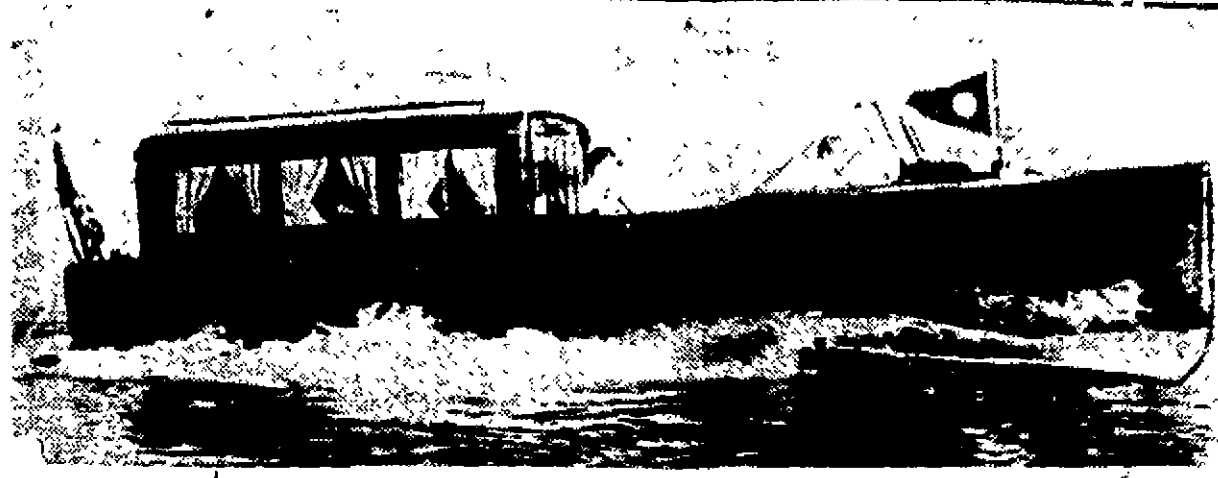

The storm which broke late last night and continued for several hours, flooded downtown streets, put 1,000 telephones out of commission, unroofed several houses and marooned dozens of automobiles parked in downtown and residential streets.

Several houses were struck by lightning and the total fire damage was high. Occupants were driven into the streets in night attire and found shelter in the homes of neighbors.

The Citizens Telephone Co., of Circleville, now collecting disputed increased rates under bond, was ordered to file approximately $30,000 additional surety by the state utilities commission here today.

At a hearing before the commission late yesterday afternoon, attorneys for the Circleville company declared that they had collected $29,150 in disputed rates, and that they expected to take in about $18,411 this year.

When it was learned by the commission that the present bond is only $10,000 it ordered the company to file bond equal to the amount collected, plus half the amount expected to be collected in the next year, plus the accrued interest.

HOUSE OKAYS
NEW GAS TAX*Measure Goes To Senate For Approval — Speed Limit
Law is Deadlocked.

COLUMBUS, O., April 5.—With the 4-cent gasoline tax bill passed by the house, the upper and lower branches of the legislature in a deadlock over the increased automobile speed limit bill and recess only a day away, the state solons were prepared today to step to a lively tune here.

By a 98-to-29 vote, the house put the stamp of approval on the Sullivan bill, which raises the gasoline tax in Ohio from three to four cents. It now goes to the senate, and will be considered by that body sometime before noon tomorrow. A stiff fight is expected, but it will be passed in that house, solely because Gov. Cooper favors the bill.

The prospect of having the state speed limit in the Buckeye state raised is not so good due to the deadlock existing between the house and senate. The upper house wants the speed limit raised from 35 miles an hour, which it now is, to 45 miles per hour. The lower branch wishes to abolish the limit altogether, allowing a "reasonable" speed on highways outside of villages and municipalities.

A sharp debate took place in the house yesterday when the Moran bill, repealing approximately 1,000 sections of the general code, came up for passage. It was finally given the "okey."

Among the sections it repeals is the provision which has provided state aid for townships out of the general revenue fund.

One of the most important pieces of legislation that must be enacted by the legislators before they trek homeward to stay is the general appropriation bill providing some $114,000,000 for the running of the state of Ohio for the next two years.

Captain and Log.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—A sea tale as strange as ever spun by the ancient mariner was scheduled to be heard before a U. S. commissioner here today.

The three semi-conscious survivors of an eleven day battle with the sea aboard the schooner yacht Nomad were expected to crackle with their captainless ship, found wallowing like a drunken sailor in the valley of the waves.

While Leland H. Ross, New York millionaire owner of the Nomad, Richard J. French, of Brooklyn, and Henry G. Bush, of East Albany, Ga., fresh water sailors, were to be questioned concerning the missing captain, customs officials declined to state whether any charges would be lodged against any of the trio.

Captain John D. Schofield, of Cape May N. J., was washed overboard on March 30, while heroically doing his duty, Ross asserted.

The sacred ship's log, the document which tells the good and bad times during a voyage, also was missing, federal authorities will ask for an explanation.

TELLS OF TRAGEDY

The Nomad—come to the end of its wanderings—was towed into port here early today by coast guard patrol boat 107 from Cape May, N. J., following her being sighted with her sails belled but helpless 18 miles off shore by a coast guard seaplane. Ross, looking anything but the dapper yachtsman and clubman, told his

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—Federal troops were engaged in "mopping up" offensives today in the three widely separated sections of Mexico.

While Gen. J. Andreau Almazan's forces continued northward in Chihuahua in pursuit of the battered remnants of the rebel army which survived the battles of La Reforma and Jimenez, Gen. Saturnino Cedillo waged an offensive against the so-called Catholic insurgents in the states of Jalisco, Guanajuato, Durango, Zacatecas and Michoacan.

Simultaneously, Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, leading a federal army of about 12,000 men in Sinaloa, moved towards Culiacan, capital of the state, expecting to occupy the city today. He reported yesterday that Gen. Francisco Manzo's rebel forces had evacuated the city and were withdrawing towards the port of San Blas.

The campaign against the Catholic rebels or "Cristeros," which has not been waged to any extent until now because of the more serious threat of the military revolt in other parts of Mexico, will now be pushed in earnest, the presidency stated.

Gen. Cedillo is leading 5,000 well-equipped troops. His force includes cavalry, artillery and four bombing planes. His first objective is the city of Guaymas.

Despite their debate at La Reforma, Gen. Plutarco Calles, war secretary and commander in chief of all the federal armies, thinks that the rebels may yet furnish some stubborn resistance in Chihuahua.

story to custom Officer Luther Stern.

"On Easter Sunday we struck very heavy seas and squalls," Ross said, telling of the tragedy to Cap. Schofield. "I was on watch at midnight we were depending on our rigging entirely as the engine room was flooded.

"A sailor relieved me of the watch but I remained on deck. Then the captain went to the top to repair the mainsail. The ship gave a terrific lurch and rolled. I heard a cry, I ran to the helm and the captain was missing. I threw over a life preserver and hoped he might cling to it."

For eleven days, the two men of the crew helped fight the storm Ross said. They prayed continually for help.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Julius W. "Nicky" Arnstein is in the toils of the law again.

The man, who for many years has been regarded as the most colorful figure in Broadway's "half-world" was to stand in the "line-up" at police headquarters today, while a Taunton, Mass., hotel keeper tries to identify him as the "con man" who stole $33,000 from him.

Arnstein, who was once the husband of Fanny Brice and who served time in Leavenworth as the alleged "master mind" of the $5,000,000 Wall Street bond theft, was arrested on complaint of Thomas Kearns, who owns a hotel in Taunton and who lives in Raynham, Mass.

Kearns said three men so interested him in a proposition to build a theatre in Taunton that he drew $33,000 from his bank and, following a conference with the men, he hid the money in a bureau drawer. The next day, Dec. 12, last, he found it stolen.

Two other men arrested with Arnstein gave their names as James Thompson, theatrical promoter, and Harry Fields, theatrical manager.

Dr. George W. Heffner, Pickaway-co health commissioner, must pay $75 per month temporary alimony to his wife, Belle M. Heffner as provided in an order issued in Ross-co common pleas court Friday.

He must also make the payments on which he is now in arrears within 10 days or be confined in the Ross-co jail until he does, the court ordered.

The order was issued by Judge Pope Gregg of the Fayette-co common pleas court who sat in the case.

The Heffner divorce case was brought to the Ross-co court on change of venue and the alimony ordered was previously issued by Judge Peter J. Bloomer who because of illness has been succeeded on the bench by Addison P. Minshall who was one of the attorneys for Mrs. Heffner. Because of a possibility of prejudice, Judge Gregg was secured to hear the case.

WIFE RETURNED HOME

Dr. Heffner asserted that he had paid the alimony until he became ill in January. After spending several weeks in a Columbus hospital he returned to his home in Circleville to recuperate and by an agreement his wife returned to his home, lived there and conducted his household.

He told Judge Gregg that it was his belief that his wife had forfeited all rights to further alimony by returning to his home.

Mrs. Heffner admitted the agreement to return but says after he became better she left. According to Judge Gregg the reasons given by Dr. Heffner for not having paid his alimony, were unsatisfactory.

BREST, FRANCE, April 5.—Myron T. Herrick, late American ambassador to France, revered in death as deeply as he was beloved in life, is homeward bound this afternoon.

Just at 12 o'clock noon, the speedy French cruiser, Tourville, with the body on board, weighed anchor and steamed for the United States.

It was regarded as fitting that the body should be taken from Brest, for it was through this port that the American soldiers poured in a steady stream after the United States entered the great war.

A squadron of seaplanes and three French destroyers formed an honorary escort as the gray, cruiser raced seaward. They accompanied the cruiser to the 12 mile shore limit, the destroyers steaming sedately about the Tourville while the seaplanes swept in wide circles through the misty, gray sky overhead.

The special train bearing Ambassador Herrick's body from Paris had arrived at 7:30 o'clock after its 400 mile journey through Brittany. At many stations quaintly garbed Brittany folk, men and women, had kept a long nightly vigil to pay their simple respects to the memory of the late envoy as the train passed.

Approval—Speed Limit
Law is Deadlocked.

COLUMBUS, O., April 5.—With the 4-cent gasoline tax bill passed by the house, the upper and lower branches of the legislature in a deadlock over the increased automobile speed limit bill and recess only a day away, the state solons were prepared today to step to a lively tune here.

By a 98-to-29 vote, the house put the stamp of approval on the Sullivan bill, which raises the gasoline tax in Ohio from three to four cents. It now goes to the senate, and will be considered by that body sometime before noon tomorrow. A stiff fight is expected, but it will be passed in that house, solely because Gov. Cooper favors the bill.

The prospect of having the state speed limit in the Buckeye state raised is not so good due to the deadlock existing between the house and senate. The upper house wants the speed limit raised from 35 miles an hour, which it now is, to 45 miles per hour. The lower branch wishes to abolish the limit altogether, allowing a "reasonable" speed on highways outside of villages and municipalities.

A sharp debate took place in the house yesterday when the Morgan bill, repealing approximately 1,000 sections of the general code, came up for passage. It was finally given the "okeh." Among the sections it repeals is the provision which has provided state aid for townships out of the general revenue fund.

One of the most important pieces of legislation that must be enacted by the legislators before they trek homeward to stay, is the general appropriation bill, providing some $114,000,000 for the running of the state of Ohio for the next two years.

POSTAL CLERK IS HELD IN ROBBERY

DAYTON, O., April 5.—The mystery surrounding a systematic theft of the mails in the post office here over a long period of time, was believed to have been penetrated today when postal inspectors arrested Robert L. Supinger, a postal clerk here for three years.

Supinger has admitted tampering with the mails, inspectors said, and with taking $250 from letters.

Three Men Found on Derelict Yacht
To Explain 11 Day Battle With SeaWealthy Owner and Two Sailors Must Tell of Missing
Captain and Log.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—A sea tale as strange as ever spun by the ancient mariner was scheduled to be heard before a U. S. commissioner here today.

The three semi-conscious survivors of an eleven day battle with the sea aboard the schooner yacht Nomad were expected to crack riddle of their captainless ship, found wallowing like a drunken sailor in the valley of the waves.

While Leland H. Ross, New York millionaire owner of the Nomad, Richard J. French, of Brooklyn, and Henry G. Bush, of East Albany, Ga., fresh water sailor, were to be questioned concerning the missing captain, customs officials declined to state whether any charges would be lodged against any of the trio.

Captain John D. Schofield, of Cape May N. J., was washed overboard on March 30, while heroically doing his duty, Ross asserted.

The sacred ship's log, the document which tells the good and bad times during a voyage, also was missing, federal authorities will ask for an explanation.

TELLS OF TRAGEDY

The Nomad—come to the end of its wanderings—was towed in to port here early today by coast guard patrol boat 107 from Cape May, N. J., following her being sighted with her sails belied by a helpless 18 miles off shore by a coast guard seaplane. Ross, looking anything but the dapper yachtman and clubman, told his

REBELS FACING
THREE DRIVES"Mopping Up" Offensives Are Launched in Mexico Under Trio of Generals.

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—Federal troops were engaged in "mopping up" offensives today in the three widely separated sections of Mexico.

While Gen. J. Andreu Almazan's forces continued northward in Chihuahua in pursuit of the battered remnants of the rebel army which survived the battles of La Reforma and Jimenez, Gen. Saturnino Cedillo waged an offensive against the so-called Catholic insurgents in the states of Jalisco, Guanajuato, Durango, Zacatecas and Michoacan.

Simultaneously, Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, leading a federal army of about 12,000 men in Sinaloa, moved towards Culiacan, capital of the state, expecting to occupy the city today. He reported yesterday that Gen. Francisco Manzo's rebel forces had evacuated the city and were withdrawing towards the port of San Blas.

The campaign against the Catholic rebels or "Cristero's," which has not been waged to any extent until now because of the more serious threat of the military revolt in other parts of Mexico, will now be pushed in earnest, the presidency stated.

Gen. Cedillo is leading 5,000 well-equipped troops. His force includes cavalry, artillery and four bombing planes. His first objective is the city of Guanajuato.

Despite their debacle at La Reforma, Gen. Plutarco Calles, war secretary and commander in chief of all the federal armies, thinks that the rebels may yet furnish some stubborn resistance in Chihuahua.

WILL PREACH HERE

Rev. W. L. Tolliver will preach Sunday, April 7, at the Second Baptist church in Circleville. His subject will be "The Church and Its Future." His scripture lesson will be from Acts II:47.

DR. HEFFNER MUST PAY OR
GO INTO JAILRoss-Co Court Orders Alimony
For Wife of Pickaway
Health Commissioner.

Dr. George W. Heffner, Pickaway-co health commissioner, must pay $75 per month temporary alimony to his wife, Belle M. Heffner as provided in an order issued in Ross-co common pleas court Friday.

He must also make the payments on which he is now in arrears within 10 days or be confined in the Ross-co jail until he does, the court ordered.

The order was issued by Judge Pope Gregg of the Fayette-co common pleas court who sat in the case.

The Heffner divorce case was brought to the Ross-co court on change of venue and the alimony ordered was previously issued by Judge Peter J. Blosser who because of illness has been succeeded on the bench by Addison P. Minshall who was one of the attorneys for Mrs. Heffner. Because of a possibility of prejudice, Judge Gregg was secured to hear the case.

WIFE RETURNED HOME

Dr. Heffner asserted that he had paid the alimony until he became ill in January. After spending several weeks in a Columbus hospital he returned to his home in Circleville to recuperate and by an agreement his wife returned to his home, lived there and conducted his household.

He told Judge Gregg that it was his belief that his wife had forfeited all rights to further alimony by returning to his home.

Mrs. Heffner admitted the agreement to return but says after he became better she left.

According to Judge Gregg the reasons given by Dr. Heffner for not having paid his alimony, were unsatisfactory.

FUNERAL SHIP
BOUND TO U. S.Herrick's Body On Board
French Cruiser, Which Leaves Port at Brest.

BREST, FRANCE, April 5.—Myron T. Herrick, late American ambassador to France, revered in death as deeply as he was beloved in life, is homeward bound this afternoon.

Just at 12 o'clock noon, the speedy French cruiser, Tourville, with the body on board, weighed anchor and steamed for the United States.

It was regarded as fitting that the body should be taken from Brest, for it was through this port that the American soldiers poured in a steady stream after the United States entered the great war.

A squadron of seaplanes and three French destroyers formed an honorary escort as the gray, cruiser raced seaward. They accompanied the cruiser to the 12 mile shore limit, the destroyers steaming sedately about the Tourville while the seaplanes swept in wide circles through the misty, gray sky overhead.

The special train bearing Ambassador Herrick's body from Paris had arrived at 7:30 o'clock after its 400 mile journey through Brittany. At many stations quaintly garbed Brittany folk, men and women, had kept a long night vigil to pay their simple respects to the memory of the late envoy as the train passed.

COUNTY IS SUED
AFTER KIDNAPING

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., April 5.—For injuries which he contends he suffered at the hands of nine men, who, masked and robed, spirited him from the city here last Wednesday night, Lawrence Vanhorn, 35, today filed a mob-law suit for $1,000 against the Belmont county commissioners.

Exhibiting marks of the beating, Vanhorn informed officers he was seized by the men, placed in an automobile and driven to a point near Maynard, where he was forced from the machine and then clubbed.

County officials, led by Prosecutor George McKelvey, have opened an inquiry.

HEALTH AND GOOD CHEER BROUGHT BY SPINAGO

Crowds Throng Mykrantz Pharmacy to Praise New Spinach Tonic For Banishing Ailments

GLORIOUS HEALTH REPLACES TWENTY YEARS' MISERY

Noah Bowsher Thankful He Tried Spinago As Last Resort.

"Oh lucky day, when I discovered Spinago." This and similar exclamations are daily made concerning this new master tonic containing spinach by many Circleville residents whose homes have been brightened by health and happiness after taking Spinago. Glorious, new health has been brought to many residents of this and other cities after they had despaired of ever being themselves again. Just the other day Mr. Noah Bowsher who resides at the Main Hotel, Circleville and is employed by the Midwest Box Co., came into the Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St., Circleville headquarters for Spinago, and told how Spinago had relieved him after twenty years' unsuccessful doctoring and trying of many patent medicines. He went on to say:

"Those twenty years of misery are not pleasant to recall. Dyspepsia, gas on the stomach and indigestion brought on practically continual sick headache. My appetite was very poor and eating was never a pleasure. Constipation caused me to feel drowsy most of the time. My vitality was so low that many times I was practically unable to get around. Several attacks of acute indigestion made my life miserable. I never knew when the next one was coming. During those twenty years, I was going to doctors all the time and trying one medicine after another, but my troubles didn't end. I had just about given up hope when I heard of Spinago and the wonderful relief it was giving others.

NOAH BOWSHER

At first I thought that it was just another patent medicine and I didn't pay much attention to the claims made for it. But finally, after hearing praise from so many people I decided that it couldn't do any harm to try it. It was sure a lucky decision for me, as my twenty years of suffering were ended by two bottles of Spinago. I can truthfully say that it is better than any medicine I have ever taken because it cured my constipation and put my digestive system in perfect shape. I am not troubled with dyspepsia or gas any more. No more sick headaches arising from these troubles has returned and I have more pep than I have had for twenty years. I enjoy my meals now and my appetite is fine.

"Any medicine that will do this much for me after twenty years of misery can surely help many others to enjoy life, and I want to heartily recommend Spinago to everyone who is troubled with any of my former complaints."

"WHAT IS SPINAGO?" THEY ASK

Skeptical Sufferers Don't Believe Such Results Are Possible.

Many sufferers who have heard of the wonders worked by Spinago in so many cases in Circleville are skeptical; they don't believe it is possible. They ask "How can any tonic do it?" What is Spinago?

The answer is simple: Spinago can accomplish such feats because it is a tonic based upon a practical idea. An idea that has been tested through many years. That Spinago is one of the most valuable foods obtainable

MRS. JOHN H. STEVENSON

"The first bottle of Spinago did me more good than seven bottles of another advertised preparation. My health was terribly poor and I could get no relief from medicines and tonics. Indigestion and stomach pains caused me to experience a tired, aching feeling all the time. Some days I was hardly able to get around. My appetite was poor; gas formed in my stomach; my weight dropped to 99 pounds. I lacked energy and strength constantly. It was necessary for me to take pills every night. For years, I tried remedies and tonics for which great claims and promises were made but with no relief, then I heard of Spinago and decided to try a bottle. The improvement was immediate and wonderful and gave me a renewed hope. I have now taken two bottles and am happy in the knowledge that my troubles are over. I don't have to take pills any more. My stomach troubles and constipation are over; there is no sign of indigestion or gas on the stomach; I have gained weight and am gaining every day and feel better than I have in years; the tired, aching feeling is all gone and my only regret is that I didn't hear of Spinago sooner.

Mrs. Stevenson's case is not out of the ordinary; many others have derived as great and even greater benefits from this wonderful Spinago.

both to combat stomach and digestive ailments and to make rich, pure blood. For many, many years doctors have recommended Spinago in diets for these ailments and it is a generally accepted fact that Spinago makes the blood pure, rich and red. And if the blood is pure, rich and red you must be healthy. But in order to derive the great benefits from Spinago it is necessary to eat large quantities of it due to the great content of moisture and other elements which are not of any special benefit to the body. But if fresh Spinago is dried until all this moisture is driven out we have left a fine powder containing only the elements which are of benefit. One pound of this powder due to its concentrated form contains as much of the elements valuable to the body as fifteen pounds of fresh, green spinach. In other words, this powder is concentrated Spinago.

This, then, is the reason why Spinago can work such wonders. Its main ingredient is concentrated and powdered Spinago, contained in each bottle, in sufficient quantity to produce the beneficial results of a great quantity of fresh Spinago.

Based upon such a formula, it is not surprising that Spinago has performed feats which seem almost like miracles.

Spinago is sold at The Mykrantz Store, 107 N. Court St., Circleville.

SAYS BOOTLEGGERS MUST CLOSE AT 8

KANSAS CITY, MO., April 5 — Chief of Police John L. Miles, newly appointed, today issued an order that Kansas City bootlegging "joints" must be closed by 8 o'clock each evening, under threat of invoking the Jones law.

In his edict, Miles also ordered concealing blinds and advertisements be removed from "speakeasy" windows. The chief said his edict was a forerunner to complete annihilation of "joints" which he had set about to put out of business. A government agent recently said there were 1,000 "joints" here.

"Childhood" Tuberculosis

Issued by Ohio State and Local Public Health Authorities

1—What Is It?
"Childhood" tuberculosis is a warning signal rather than a disease in itself. Is it not, scientifically speaking, lung tuberculosis, for the breathing substance of the lung has not yet been affected? When a boy or girl becomes infected with great numbers of tubercle bacilli, glands in the lungs serve as filters to prevent their getting into the blood. In this process, the glands themselves may become damaged. In time the injured parts of the gland become replaced by calcium—a hard, gritty substance. This is the condition known as "childhood" tuberculosis.

It may cause the child to have a poor appetite, to be weak, listless and underweight, or it may do none of these things. However, the presence of lung-gland tuberculosis is always an indication that the child may develop pulmonary tuberculosis later, unless his health is guarded.

"EARLY DISCOVERY; EARLY RECOVERY."

Cretans Were Liberal in Decorative Ideas

The Cretan decorators did not scruple to depart from a literal interpretation of nature if by so doing they secured desirable decorative effects.

If a monkey with a blue head suited their purpose better than a realistic monkey they showed no hesitance in altering it. This is the decorator's privilege, a sort of artistic license that has been taken by artists from those ancient times to the present.

Do not think that curious drawings and distortions are the product of anaesthetic hands. The Cretan decorators did not alter the apparent forms because they could not draw them correctly. It was done deliberately, to suit their scheme of decoration. Sometimes a naturalistic treatment of flowers and ferns was used.

When they liked they could give realistic interpretation and at other times conventionalize their subjects. When it suited their purpose they put in colors that nature never used in such places. These Cretan decorators were great craftsmen and artists. Their designs are studied by artists today.

Origination of Term "Old Glory"

The origin of the term "Old Glory" is contained in a letter written by Robert S. Rantoul, president of the Essex Institute, Salem, Mass., where the flag about which it was said is still kept. According to a report, Captain Driver of Salem in 1831 commanded the brig Charles Doggett, which sailed on its famous voyage which resulted in the rescue of the mutineers of the British ship Bounty. A letter acknowledging this service contains Driver's autograph, dated November 16, 1830, and bears the words "My ship, my country and my flag. Old Glory." It may be fairly assumed, therefore, that the phrase "Old Glory" originated with Captain Driver. The flag which was so designated by him was presented to him by a friend before starting on this voyage.

PHONE WIRES NOT PROTECTED AGAINST "FLU"

One Exchange Forced to Close Entirely During Recent Epidemic

That the recent influenza epidemic took a southerly course through Ohio is shown by records of absence in The Ohio Bell Telephone Company. In Toledo, the highest absence rate occurred during the week of December 9, when 43.4 per cent of the local force and 22.4 per cent of the long distance operators were unable to report for duty. In Findlay, the week of December 16 showed an absence rate of 7.3 per cent, and in Columbus the peak occurred during the week of December 23.

The epidemic proved a serious impediment to telephone service throughout the state, with each of the various exchanges crippled to some extent through the ravages of "flu." The exchange at Claridon was forced to close entirely and a telephone was installed in a grocery store to provide outside communication through the exchange at Chardon.

In Columbus, approximately 25 per cent of the company's operators were off duty, while the absence in Cleveland amounted to 20 per cent, with 400 operators confined to their homes.

All over the state service was below normal and the telephone company requested public co-operation in overcoming the handicap, urging subscribers to have patience when their calls were not put through with the usual promptness.

In an effort to combat the epidemic, constant vigilance was exercised by telephone company officials and all employees who showed signs of fever were sent home. All transmitters were carefully sterilized after use and other precautionary measures such as gargles and antiseptics were used.

Objected to Knitting in London Co. Council

Knitting needles may not click an accompaniment to the debates in the London county council.

This unwritten law was laid down with emphasis by an irate masculine objector when Dame Beatrice Lyall, member for Epsom Fulham, produced a pair during an all-night session and proceeded to click off interminable hours of debate with as many inches of warm woolen sock.

No woman has yet had the hardihood to produce knitting needles in the house of commons, but in the past men M. P.'s have done so.

The most famous knitter in parliamentary annals was one of the Watson brothers, who were well known to a former generation at Westminster. They were such big men that they were prominent figures wherever they appeared, and the spectacle of one of them, a man six feet tall and proportionately hefty, plying his knitting needles throughout debates in the house must have been incongruous. His fellow M. P.'s apparently thought nothing of it, however, for there are no chronicled objections in parliamentary archives.

Character Molded by Example of Parents

Do you ever wonder what you would have been if your father and mother had been different? I often do.

My own father and mother lived what they tried to teach their two children, my sister and myself. To have so consistent an example of absolute integrity would be of incalculable worth to any child; I never can sufficiently express my debt of gratitude to them.

My father was a "natural-born" scientist, an indefatigable searcher for the relation between cause and effect. It was he that taught me to ask the why of everything; to want to know and to understand things.

Both my father and my mother judged persons by the essentials of character; such things as honesty, kindness, uprightness; by what persons were—not by how much money they had or how much show they could make.—Marv B. Mullett in the American Magazine

One of the Band

Saturday afternoon was a day set apart for the village band to indulge in its weekly practice march.

On this particular day they happened to halt outside the local justice of the peace's house. The latter was a very irritable man who hated bands. Consequently, he was far from pleased when the sound of martial music fell upon his ears.

"Look here!" he cried, rushing up to the bandmaster. "If you don't stop that infernal din, I'll go and fetch our policeman!"

But the bandmaster was equal to the occasion.

"You can't do that, sir," he smiled. "That's 'im playin' the trombone."—London Tit-Bits.

REPORTS THEFT OF 2 VALUABLE FROGS

TOLEDO, O., April 5 — Frogs usually don't go away of their own accord, especially when they are secured in a water tight tank, so the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Rana Catesabana, raised on artificial food and valued at $1,000 each by their owner, Dr. Robert Wald, was listed today as a mystery.

Apparently stolen from the tank in the rear of the physician's home, Dr. Wald has asked police to aid in the search for the hoppers. They were used for experimental purposes.

Rites of Baptism
Lambertism is unquestionably the most ancient form of Christian baptism. The word "baptism" is derived from the Greek "bapto" or "baptizo," literally meaning to immerse, bathe, or wash. Baptism in the Latin or Roman Catholic church was originally by immersion. That method prevailed until about the twelfth century. In some places individual Catholic churches continued to baptize by immersion until only a few hundred years ago. According to the ritual now authorized by the Catholic church, baptism is performed by lavin the candidate's head.—Exchange.

And if the blood is pure, rich and red you must be healthy. But in order to derive the great benefits from Spinago it is necessary to eat large quantities of it due to the great content of moisture and other elements which are not of any special benefit to the body. But if fresh Spinago is dried until all this moisture is driven out we have left a fine powder containing only the elements which are of benefit. One pound of this powder, due to its concentrated form, contains as much of the elements valuable to the body as fifteen pounds of fresh, green spinach. In other words, this powder is concentrated Spinago.

This, then, is the reason why Spinago can work such wonders. It's main ingredient is concentrated dry, powdered Spinago contained in each bottle, in sufficient quantity to produce the beneficial results of a great quantity of fresh Spinago. Based upon such a formula, it is not surprising that Spinago has performed feats which seem almost like miracles. Spinago is sold at The Mykrantz Store, 107 N. Court St., Circleville.

SAYS BOOTLEGGERS MUST CLOSE AT 8

KANSAS CITY, MO., April 5—Chief of Police John L. Miles, newly appointed, today issued an order that Kansas City bootlegging "joints" must be closed by 8 o'clock each evening, under threat of invoking the Jones law. In his edict, Miles also ordered concealing blinds and advertisements be removed from "speakeasy" windows. The chief said his edict was a forerunner to complete annihilation of "joints" which he had set about to put out of business. A government agent recently said there were 1,000 "joints" here.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union met on Wednesday afternoon, April 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Bessie Miller with Mrs. Alice Brundige assistant hostess. The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock by the president, Miss Mary L. Harpster, by singing the "White Ribbon Rally Song" followed by the reading of the scripture lesson found in Acts 10th chapter and from 9th to 16th verses, also the 34 and 35th verses of the same chapter. After prayer by the president, the society sang "America." Mrs. Alice Brundige read the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Lillian Hinton. The president gave a short report of the county institute held at New Holland on March 15th, this was followed by ten minutes of parliamentary law review in charge of Mrs. Alice Brundige. The institute that will be held in June in Kingston was thoroughly discussed and plans made for a splendid time. Mrs. Ora Dumm made the motion to have a number of visitors at this institute dinner and charge 50 cents a plate. It was seconded and voted upon and carried. The president appointed Mesdames W. L. Evans, Irwin Morris, J. W. Shoemaker, Clarence Dumm and Margaret Wapole to arrange the menu and decide the amount of food needed for the institute. Leaflets on One Hundred Percent Americanism were read by Mrs. Shoemaker and Mrs. Miller. Clippings were read by Mrs. Wapole. The hostesses served cocoa with marshmallow, wafers and chocolate candy to the 15 members and visitors.

Mrs. Mary E. Keister moved from Mrs. Mary Mathes property on Clark-st to Mrs. Margaret Lightner's property on S. Main-st on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Brown were visitors to Columbus on Wednesday.

Miss Mary Karshner of Hayesville, was the guest of Miss Flossie Harpster on Wednesday and was present at the meeting of the Ne Plus Ultra class meeting.

Mr. Donald Gatwood of Hallsville moved his family into the Fred Shaff property on High-st.

Mrs. Ada Dreisbach is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Ray M. Maag and family in Columbus this week.

Rev. and Mrs. George W. Brown were visitors to Columbus on Tuesday and called upon Mrs. C. M. Senff, who has been ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carl Cunningham for several weeks. Mrs. Senff is slowly improving from a severe carbuncle under her left arm.

Hon. R. W. Dunlap arrived Thursday to spend a few days at his farm north of town.

"Childhood" Tuberculosis

1.—What Is It?
"Childhood" tuberculosis is a warning signal rather than a disease in itself. Is is not, scientifically speaking, lung tuberculosis, for the breathing substance of the lung has not yet been affected. When a boy or girl becomes infected with great numbers of tubercle bacilli, glands in the lungs serve as filters to prevent their getting into the blood. In this process, the glands themselves may become damaged. In time the injured parts of the gland become replaced by calcium—a hard, gritty substance. This is the condition known as "childhood" tuberculosis.

It may cause the child to have a poor appetite, to be weak, listless and underweight, or it may do none of these things. However, the presence of lung-gland tuberculosis is always an indication that the child may develop pulmonary tuberculosis later, unless his health is guarded.

EARLY DISCOVERY; EARLY RECOVERY.

Cretans Were Liberal in Decorative Ideas

The Cretan decorators did not scruple to depart from a literal interpretation of nature if by so doing they secured desirable decorative effects.

If a monkey with a blue head suited their purpose better than a realistic monkey they showed no hesitancy in altering it. This is the decorator's privilege, a sort of artistic license that has been taken by artists from those ancient times to the present.

Do not think that curious drawings and distortions are the product of amateurish hands. The Cretan decorators did not alter the apparent forms because they could not draw them correctly. It was done deliberately, to suit their scheme of decoration. Sometimes a naturalistic treatment of flowers and ferns was used. When they liked they could give realistic interpretation and at other times conventionalize their subjects. When it suited their purpose they put in colors that nature never used in such places. These Cretan decorators were great craftsmen and artists. Their designs are studied by artists today.

Origination of Term "Old Glory"

The origin of the term "Old Glory" is contained in a letter written by Robert S. Rantoul, president of the Essex Institute, Salem, Mass., where the flag about which it was said is still kept. According to a report, Captain Driver of Salem in 1831 commanded the brig Charles Dagget, which sailed on its famous voyage which resulted in the rescue of the mutineers of the British ship Bounty. A letter acknowledging this service contains Driver's autograph, dated November 16, 1880, and bears the words "My ship, my country and my flag Old Glory." It may be fairly assumed, therefore, that the phrase "Old Glory" originated with Captain Driver. The flag which was so designated by him was presented to him by a friend before starting on this voyage.

PHONE WIRES NOT PROTECTED AGAINST "FLU"

One Exchange Forced to Close Entirely During Recent Epidemic

That the recent influenza epidemic took a southerly course through Ohio is shown by records of absence in The Ohio Bell Telephone Company. In Toledo, the highest absence rate occurred during the week of December 9, when 43.4 per cent of the local force and 22.4 per cent of the long distance operators were unable to report for duty. In Findlay, the week of December 16 showed an absence rate of 7.3 per cent, and in Columbus the peak occurred during the week of December 23.

The epidemic proved a serious impediment to telephone service throughout the state, with each of the various exchanges crippled to some extent through the ravages of "flu." The exchange at Claridon was forced to close entirely and a telephone was installed in a grocery store to provide outside communication through the exchange at Chardon.

In Columbus, approximately 25 per cent of the company's operators were off duty, while the absence in Cleveland amounted to 20 per cent, with 400 operators confined to their homes.

All over the state service was below normal and the telephone company requested public co-operation in overcoming the handicap, urging subscribers to have patience when their calls were not put through with the usual promptness.

In an effort to combat the epidemic, constant vigilance was exercised by telephone company officials and all employees who showed signs of fever were sent home. All transmitters were carefully sterilized after use and other precautionary measures such as gargles and antiseptics were used.

Objected to Knitting in London Co. Council

Knitting needles may not click an accompaniment to the debates in the London county council.

This unwritten law was laid down with emphasis by an irate member when Dame Beatrice Lyall, member for East Fulham, produced a pair during an all-night session and proceeded to click off interminable hours of debate with as many inches of warm woolen sock.

No woman has yet had the hardihood to produce knitting needles in the house of commons, but in the past Mrs. M. P.'s have done so.

The most famous knitter in parliamentary annals was one of the Wason brothers, who were well known to a former generation at Westminster. They were such big men that they were prominent figures wherever they appeared, and the spectacle of one of them, a man six feet tall and proportionately hefty, playing his knitting needles throughout debates in the house have been incongruous. His fellow M. P.'s apparently thought nothing of it, however, for there are no chronicled objections in parliamentary archives.

Character Molded by Example of Parents

Do you ever wonder what your would have been if your father and mother had been different? I often do.

My own father and mother lived what they tried to teach their two children, my sister and myself. To have so consistent an example of absolute integrity would be of incalculable worth to any child; I never can sufficiently express my debt of gratitude to them.

My father was a "natural-born" scientist, an indefatigable searcher for the relation between cause and effect. It was he that taught me to ask the why of everything; to want to know and to understand things.

Both my father and my mother judged persons by the essentials of character; such things as honesty, kindness, uprightness; by what persons were—not by how much money they had or how much show they could make.—Mary D. Mullett in the American Magazine.

One of the Band

Saturday afternoon was a day set apart for the village band to indulge in its weekly practice march.

On this particular day they happened to halt outside the local justice of the peace's house. The latter was a very irritable man who hated bands. Consequently, he was far from pleased when the sound of martial music fell upon his ears. "Look here!" he cried, rushing up to the bandmaster, "if you don't stop that infernal din, I'll go and fetch our policeman!"

But the bandmaster was equal to the occasion. "You can't do that, sir," he smiled. "That's 'im playin' the trombone."—London Tit-Bits.

Keep youth longer! cleanse the system of poisons

Two of the great enemies to youth and vitality are delayed elimination and intestinal poisons. To keep yourself free from both these common difficulties will help you to stay young.

With the use of Nujol you can do it too. For Nujol absorbs body poisons and carries them off, preventing their absorption by the body. Nujol also softens the waste matter and brings about normal evacuation. It is harmless; contains no drugs or medicine. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys. Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.

REPORTS THEFT OF 2 VALUABLE FROGS

TOLEDO, O., April 5—Frogs usually don't go away of their own accord, especially when they are secured in a water tight tank, so the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Rana Catsabiana, raised on artificial food and valued at $1,000 each by their owner, Dr. Robert Wald, was listed today as a mystery.

Apparently stolen from the tank in the rear of the physician's home, Dr. Wald has asked police to aid in the search for the hoppers. They were used for experimental purposes.

Rites of Baptism

Immersion is unquestionably the most ancient form of Christian baptism. The word "baptism" is derived from the Greek "bapto" or "baptizo," literally meaning to immerse, bathe, or wash. Baptism in the Latin or Roman Catholic church was originally by immersion. That method prevailed until about the Twelfth century. In some places individual churches continued to baptize by immersion until only a few hundred years ago. According to the ritual now authorized by the Catholic church, baptism is performed by lavin the candidate's head.—Exchange.

YOUTH IS NOT SO BAD.

Sensational reports of juvenile crime have been so loud and prolonged that the public has developed a kind of blind belief in the increasing wickedness of the younger generation. Hence it is with a feeling of shock that one reads a government bulletin on delinquency among the young which indicates a drop in juvenile misconduct.

With blazing stories of 18-year-old bandits filling prominent positions in the news it seems impossible that the official report can be accurate. Yet a survey carefully covering the larger cities reveals a decrease in the delinquency rate.

It is easy to prophesy ruin for all the youngsters in the United States because a few with inflated imaginations and distorted notions of their relations to the world are spectacularly criminal. Often it has been observed that the young people whose parents are infected with the jazz spirit of the age are themselves a serious, quiet aggregation. Rather naturally the parents find themselves thinking of the children as more gay and naughty than their elders. But now the boys and girls have governmental evidence of improvement in their behavior.

Those who know the Boy Scout movement and its products in flesh and blood will cite as further evidence of the soundness of modern youth the fact that 489,108 merit badges were awarded Boy Scouts last year. The weight of the evidence is in favor of youth and its good name.

Not to Be Expected

An actress was traveling to the seaside to join a concert party. At the London station the porter cast a disapproving eye upon her large quantity of baggage and intimated that she would have to pay "excess" unless she was a theatrical artist.

"That's exactly what I am," said the girl.

"Well, then, miss," said the harried man, "why didn't you say so at first? I can't go about all day long insulting passengers by asking them if they're actresses."—London Answers.

SOMETHING ELSE THAT NEEDS ATTENTION

Motion Pictures Feature New York Parents' Association Exposition; President Stresses Community Aid

Education came into its own as a popular subject when 260,000 visitors attended the 1929 exposition of the United Parents' Association of Greater New York. More than 190,000 square feet in the Grand Central Palace were devoted to varied exhibits of what goes on in the schools of today.

A principal feature of the exposition was the showing of 180,000 feet of motion pictures, selected from the libraries of all the great film producing companies.

"The purpose," according to Dr. Alexander Mayer, president of the Association, "was to demonstrate to parents that the motion picture, as it comes from the studios today, comprises helpful educational and entertainment aids in every branch of family and community life. There is scarcely a problem of the home, the school or the civic life of any neighborhood, which motion pictures, properly selected, cannot materially aid toward solution."

A distinguished committee of educators aided Dr. Mayer, who was formerly assistant attorney general in New York and who is one of the best known alumni of New York University, to choose the representative pictures. Access to the film libraries was had through the cooperation of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, of which Will H. Hays is president, and the thirty-four miles of motion pictures were furnished by the exposition without cost.

"The most important motion picture

consideration from the standpoint of our group," Dr. Mayer said, "is their influence on child life. I believe that influence is good. The school or home that would do without the motion picture of today would be foolish past belief. However, there is a definite obligation of selection, devolving on parents. We cannot expect the motion picture industry to produce all its films with the child in mind, any more than we could expect the stage or the printing press to confine themselves to juvenalia. Children constitute only about eight per cent of motion picture audiences."

"The film in the theatre has come to be an integral part of our life. The leaders in the motion picture industry have spent millions in producing educational films where the box office intent was only a secondary consideration. It is the duty of parents to help see that this highest type of entertainment picture shall also become the most profitable, which has not always been the case in the past. The only way to assure better film selection is winning the day. I think Mr. Hays deserves the thanks of America for the work he has done in this direction."

Dr. Mayer advocated the set-up of similar expositions throughout the country.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

When Lilith Holden died and left the infant Lilith, Guinn, her husband, married Irene Robeline, who had been in love with Guinn. For twenty years Irene worked and slaved as the wife of the handsome Texas minister. The love she hoped to earn she found was given wholly to the beautiful grown-up Lilith. As Guinn spoiled this blonde image of the dead Lilith, Irene buried her grief in ministering to her own children, Tina, Ross, Lundy and Patricia, who were secondary in their father's affections. After college Lilith, given a year to study music in New York, fell in love with Bill Chester, scion of wealth and family tradition. At home Tina, a spunky beauty, becomes engaged to a handsome lad, Dan, below her all the family. Lilith, seeking only her own selfish ends, breaks her engagement to Sally Burton, Texas boy, when Bill promises to end his betrothal to Sally Burton, society girl. Before sailing for Paris where his rich grandfather has demanded his presence, Bill madly in love with Lilith devotes his last week to her. Before sailing she seals her love by giving herself to him. Lilith spends her days re-reading Bill's cables confirming his love. But in Paris he agrees to marry Sally at his grandfather's command. Lilith is stunned with the message, "Sally and I were married this morning. Forgive me and forget." Lilith for the first time learned grief. She threw herself into her music study. Then came an offer of a Winter in Paris with Vivien Winthrop, an opportunity to winter with her with Guinn. But a doctor's visit ends all. Lilith is to have a child. She moves to an unknown address.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LVII.

It was March, and Irene was busy in her garden. Bareheaded, her short blue-linen dress making a spot of color against the green, she dug trenches for violets. She luxuriated in the feel of the sun on her head, the crumble of damp earth in her fingers, in the sense that she was one with growing things. She glanced appreciatively around her. The buds on her rose bushes were swelling, and in April would be a mass of bloom. Guinn sometimes laughingly said, "I couldn't accept another call, for Irene couldn't be dragged from her flowers here."

"But I'd find or make another garden, wherever we went," she told him. "I need a garden to keep me going."

Now she was her most joyous and optimistic self while she was at work among the flowers. Problems and worries lost themselves in the ground she turned up, became sterilized in the sunshine, blown away by the breeze. Now she was singing a half-tuneful rigamarole, and waved an earthy hand toward Will Lundy as he drove up in his car.

"Come in and see my garden," she called.

Guinn appeared on the porch at that moment. "Yes, come in, do."

The two men went into the house and Irene followed them, to wash her hands.

"I'm never fit for society in Springtime," she apologized, when she joined them later in the living room, where Tina and Dan were having a cup of tea. "I neglect husband, children, church and house for my garden."

"Yes, I can't get her excited over my hope chest," Tina accused her. "I don't believe she'd care if we eloped tomorrow, without any grand wedding."

"That would be fine," she said gaily.

"Let's try it," Dan proposed.

"Don't you dare?" Guinn challenged him. "I don't intend to leave both my big girls gone at once."

Dan's father had died in January, and Dan had begged to have a quiet wedding soon after that, so that he and Tina could start on their trip around the world, but Guinn had opposed it so vehemently that the plan had been given up.

"You don't know I'm living when Lilith is here," Tina had complained. "Now you only think of me to bust up my wedding!"

Guinn turned to the doctor now. "Will, did you see Lilith on your trip to New York?"

"Just had a glimpse of her. I tried to bring her home with me, but she wouldn't come. She wasn't looking well."

"She's overworking," he said anxiously. "New York seems to have gotten her. She's overstayed her year already, but I can't get her to say when she's coming home."

"I wish she would come home," said Irene soberly. "Her letters don't sound as if she were having a good time. She bubbled over with glee when she first went up there. Now her letters are mechanical."

"Well, she can't stay permanently on two thousand dollars," Guinn concluded, hopelessly.

Soon Dan and Tina started off for a ride, and Guinn departed to see a sick church member. Will Lundy stayed on chatting with Irene.

When the two cars had rumbled out of hearing, Irene turned to him. "Tell me everything about Lilith. Something's wrong, isn't there?"

"Yes," his eyes refused to meet hers.

"What is it, Will?" she asked sharply.

He hesitated, fumbling with an empty teacup.

"Has she faded in her music or been disappointed in love—or what?"

"I know nothing, I thought maybe you would have an inkling from her letters."

"She hasn't been going out much of late. Up till September her letters were sparkling, then the sparkle died."

"Yes, I judge so." He gave a heavy sigh. His face, usually so ruddy with healthy color, now seemed drawn and pale, and the lively gleam of his coppery hair seemed dulled.

"But what are we going to do?" she shrilled in a voice that sounded like that of a squeaking doll.

"I've been trying to think. That's why I beat it back hotfoot to you, so we might plan together. If I could have handled it myself, without letting you know, I'd have done it. You know that, don't you, Irene?" His eyes besought her to understand.

"I saw her just once," he answered, picking his words with care. "I'd gone to the address you gave me, but she 'died' there, had had her mail forwarded. I had to use detective methods to find her."

"She leaned forward abruptly. 'Why doesn't she come home then?'"

"Yes?"

"She's—she's sick, Irene."

"Why doesn't she come home then?" Her eyes were frightened.

"She can't, very well." He gazed out of the window.

"Why?" Irene jerked out.

"He laid his hands on hers. 'Can you hear the truth, Irene?'"

"Yes, yes! What is it?"

"She's going to have a child."

"Oh, merciful God, no!" She sprang to her feet, striking her hand against the tea wagon and crashing a cup to the floor.

"Steady, Irene, steady." He put his arm about her shaking shoulders and forced her into a chair. She stared at him with wild

"She twisted her fingers together till they were like writhing Lacooms. 'I don't know what to do!'"

"I figured that Guinn could make some excuse for a trip to New York. I'll go back with him and get her in a nursing home somewhere where they know how to keep mum."

"She jerked back in horror. 'Oh, Guinn mustn't know!'"

"How's he going to help it?" he asked bluntly. "He's her father."

"But it would crush him, kill him to know this. She's the very core of his heart."

"I've noticed that," he commented dryly. "But she's his daughter, not yours. And he's the one that spoiled her, so he should face the music."

Evergreens Found in Warm and Cold Zones

An evergreen is a tree which stays green all winter—that is to Colomes. This is said to have been said by Washington over his camp in trees. Many evergreens are conifers (cone-bearing trees), but not all conifers are evergreens. The larch is a conifer, but it is not an evergreen.

Spruce is a familiar evergreen. It was so named because it was first known as a native of Prussia—French "prusse" and middle English "pruse" or "spruce." Spruce is an old name for Prussia. It is an old word, long in the language, which it designates today. The hemlock has also been long in the language.

There are evergreens which are not trees. Almost all tropical plants, hotbedding speaking, are evergreens. The holly is an interesting northern evergreen, much used for decoration purposes at Christmas.

The blooded holly is an evergreen shrub. Its name, according to Webster's New International Dictionary, comes from Greek words meaning "lively" "green tree." It was so named because of its large flowers.

Other evergreens of the North include certain varieties of the cedar, fir, laurel, etc. The words are all "holly"—that is, they have been in the language for centuries, often nearly in the form we know today as the names of these plants or similar plants.

Explained

It was Thursday and Wilkins was "broke" and hungry. Halting outside a butcher's shop, he gazed wistfully at the display of chops and sirloins in the window. Plucking up his courage, he entered.

"If I leave a security equal to what I take away, will you trust me till tomorrow?" he asked.

"Certainly," replied the butcher.

"Well, give me a couple of those joints and keep one of them till I come back."

eyes. "You must be mistaken. Will it can't be true!"

"I'm a doctor, Irene."

"Yes, yes, I know." She looked at him piteously, her eyes begging him to take back his words.

"I—hate to tell you this, but you had to know it," he muttered.

"What did she say, Will?"

"Nothing."

"I asked her in a general way if I couldn't let her after her for a while; but she looked scared and desperate, like a rabbit caught in a steel trap, expecting you to knock it on the head. Said she was all right, didn't need anything. Just had overworked."

"Couldn't you urge her, Will?"

"She herself felt like a rabbit caught in a steel trap, looking for her life to knock her on the head. 'I did.' His tone was somber, his face haggard. 'But she looked so wild. I was afraid she'd jump out of the window if I pushed her. I thought I'd better let her think she'd fooled me. That gives us time to decide what to do.'"

"She pressed her hand to her forehead. 'You haven't any idea—why?'"

"I know nothing, I thought maybe you would have an inkling from her letters."

"She hasn't been going out much of late. Up till September her letters were sparkling, then the sparkle died."

WATER SOFTENED WITH MELO IS A REMARKABLE CLEANER

SOAP and hard water make scum. The hardness in the water combines with the soap. The scum collects dirt. There is a dirty ring around the dishpan, the washtubs, the bathtub. But soften hard water with Melo and no scum forms.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. It makes the soap much more effective, too, saving from 1/3 to 1/2 the amount ordinarily used. Melo only costs 10 cents a can. You can afford to buy 5 cans and keep one in the kitchen, one in the laundry, and one in the bathroom. Get it at your grocer's.

BIBLE THOUGHT

OUR GOD—Ye my flock, the flock of my pasture, are men, and I am your God, saith the Lord God.—Ezekiel 34:31.

PRAYER—Lord, what is man that Thou art mindful of him? And the Son of man that Thou visitest him—

YOUTH IS NOT SO BAD

Sensational reports of juvenile crime have been so loud and prolonged that the public has developed a kind of blind belief in the increasing wickedness of the younger generation. Hence it is with a feeling of shock that one reads a government bulletin on delinquency among the young which indicates a drop in juvenile misconduct.

With blazing stories of 18-year-old bandits filling prominent positions in the news it seems impossible that the official report can be accurate. Yet a survey carefully covering the larger cities reveals a decrease in the delinquency rate.

It is easy to prophesy ruin for all the youngsters in the United States because a few with inflated imaginations and distorted notions of their relations to the world are spectacularly criminal. Often it has been observed that the young people whose parents are infected with the jazz spirit of the age are themselves a serious, quiet aggregation. Rather naturally the parents find themselves thinking of the children as more gay and naughty than their elders. But now the boys and girls have governmental evidence of improvement in their behavior.

Those who know the Boy Scout movement and its products in flesh and blood will cite as further evidence of the soundness of modern youth the fact, that 489,108 merit badges were awarded Boy Scouts last year. The weight of the evidence is in favor of youth and its good name.

Not to Be Expected

An actress was traveling to the seaside to join a concert party. At the London station the porter cast a disapproving eye upon her large quantity of luggage and intimated that she would have to pay "excess" unless she was a theatrical artiste.

"That's exactly what I am," said the girl.

"Well, then, miss," said the porter, "why didn't you say so at first? I can't go about all day long insulting passengers by asking them if they're actresses."—London Answers.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. It restores, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Motion Pictures Feature New York Parents' Association Exposition; President Stresses Community Aid

Education came into its own as a popular subject when 260,000 visitors attended the 1929 exposition of the United Parents' Association of Greater New York. More than 190,000 square feet in the Grand Central Palace were devoted to varied exhibits of what goes on in the schools of today.

A principal feature of the exposition was the showing of 180,000 feet of motion pictures, selected from the libraries of all the great film producing companies.

"The purpose," according to Dr. Alexander Mayer, president of the Association, "was to demonstrate to parents that the motion picture, as it comes from the studios today, comprises helpful educational and entertainment aids in every branch of family and community life. There is scarcely a problem of the home, the school or the civic life of any neighborhood, which motion pictures, properly selected, cannot materially aid toward solution."

A distinguished committee of educators aided Dr. Mayer, who was formerly assistant attorney general in New York and who is one of the best known alumni of New York University, to choose the representative pictures. Access to the film libraries was had through the cooperation of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, of which Will H. Hays is president, and the thirty-four miles of motion pictures were furnished the exposition without cost.

"The most important motion picture

consideration from the standpoint of our group," Dr. Mayer said, "is their influence on child life. I believe that influence is good. The school or home that would do without the motion picture of today would be foolish past belief. However, there is a definite obligation of selection, devolving on parents. We cannot expect the motion picture industry to produce all its films with the child in mind, any more than we could expect the stage or the printing press to confine themselves to juvenalia. Children constitute only about eight per cent of motion picture audiences."

"The film in the theatre has come to be an integral part of our life. The leaders in the motion picture industry have spent millions in producing educational films where the box office intent was only a secondary consideration. It is the duty of parents to help see that this highest type of entertainment picture shall also become the most profitable, which has not always been the case in the past. The only way to assure better films is to consistently support the best. Selection is winning the day. I think Mr. Hays is winning the thanks of America for the work he has done in this direction."

Dr. Mayer advocated the set-up of similar expositions throughout the country.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

WHEN Lilith Holden died and left the infant Lilith, Guinn, her husband, married Irene Robeline, who had been in love with Guinn. For twenty years Irene worked and slaved as the wife of the handsome Texas minister. The love she hoped to earn she found was given wholly to the beautiful grown-up Lilith. As Guinn spoiled this blonde image of the dead Lilith, Irene buried her grief in ministering to her own children, Tina, Ross, Lundy and Patricia, who were secondary in their father's affections. After college Lilith, given a year to study music in New York, fell in love with Bill Chester, scion of wealth and family tradition. At home Tina wearing Lilith's cast off clothes, which failed to hide her dark gypsy-like beauty, becomes engaged to a handsome lad, Dan, beloved by all the family. Lilith, seeking only her own selfish ends, breaks her engagement with Roger Devereux, Texas boy, when Bill promises to end his betrothal to Sally Burton, society girl. Before sailing for Paris where his rich grandfather has demanded his presence, Bill madly in love with Lilith devotes his last week to her. Before sailing she seals her love by giving her grandfather's command. Lilith is stunned with the message, "Sally and I were married this morning. Forgive me and forget." Lilith for the first time learned grief. She threw herself into her music study. Then came an offer of a Winter in Paris with Vivien Winthrop, an opportunity to wither Bill with scorn. But a doctor's visit ends all. Lilith is to have a child. She moves to an unknown address.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVII.
It was March, and Irene was busy in her garden. Bareheaded, her short blue-lined dress making a spot of color against the green, she dug trenches for violets. She luxuriated in the feel of the sun on her head, the crumble of damp earth in her fingers, in the sense that she was one with growing things. She glanced appreciatively around her. The buds on her rose bushes were swelling, and in April would be a mass of bloom. Guinn sometimes laughingly said, "I couldn't accept another call, for Irene couldn't be dragged from her flowers here."

"But I'd find or make another garden, wherever we went," she told him. "I need a garden to keep me going."

Now she was her most joyous and optimistic self while she was at work among the flowers. Problems and worries lost themselves in the ground she turned up, became sterilized in the sunshine, blown away by the breeze. Now she was singing a half-tuneless rigamarole, and wasted an earthy hand toward Will Lundy as he drove up in his car.

"Come in and see my garden," she called.

Guinn appeared on the porch at that moment. "Yes, come in, do."

The two men went into the house and Irene followed them, to wash her hands.

"I'm never fit for society in Springtime," she apologized, when she joined them later in the living room, where Tina and Dan were having a cup of tea. "I neglect husband, children, church and house for my garden."

"Yes, I can't get her excited over my hope chest," Tina accused her. "I don't believe she'd care if we eloped tomorrow, without any grand wedding."

"That would be fine," she said gaily.

"Let's try it," Dan proposed.

"Don't you dare!" Guinn challenged him. "I don't intend to have both my big girls gone at once."

Dan's father had died in January, and Dan had begged to have a quiet wedding soon after that, so that he and Tina could start on their trip around the world, but Guinn had opposed it so vehemently that the plan had been given up.

"You don't know I'm living when Lilith is here," Tina had complained. "Now you think of me to bust up my wedding!"

Guinn turned to the doctor now. "Will, did you see Lilith on your trip to New York?"

"Just had a glimpse of her. I tried to bring her home with me, but she wouldn't come. She wasn't looking well."

"She's overworking," he said anxiously. "New York seems to have gotten her. She's overstayed her year already, but I can't get her to say when she's coming home."

"I wish she would come home," said Irene soberly. "Her letters don't sound as if she were having a eyes. "You must be mistaken, Will! It can't be true!"

"I'm a doctor, Irene."

"Yes, yes, I know." She looked at him piteously, her eyes begging him to take back his words.

"I hate to tell you this, but you had to know it," he muttered. "What did she say, Will?"

"Nothing. I asked her in a general way if I couldn't look after her for a while, but she looked scared and desperate, like a rabbit caught in a steel trap, expecting you to knock it on the head. Said she was all right, didn't need anything. Just had overworked."

"Couldn't you urge her, Will?" She herself felt like a rabbit caught in a steel trap, looking for her life to knock her on the head. "I did." His tone was somber, his face haggard. "But she looked so wild. I was afraid she'd jump out of the window if I pushed her. I thought I'd better let her think she'd fooled me. That gives me time to decide what to do."

She pressed her hand to her forehead. "You haven't any idea—why?"

"I know nothing, I thought maybe you would have an inkling from her letters."

"She hasn't been going out much of late. Up till September her letters were sparkling, then the sparkle died."

"Yes, I judge so." He gave a heavy sigh. His face, usually so ruddy with healthy color, now seemed drawn and pale, and the lively gleam of his coppery hair seemed dulled.

"But what are we going to do?" she shrilled in a voice that sounded like that of a squeaking doll.

"I've been trying to think. That's why I beat it back hotfoot to you, so we might plan together. If I could have handled it myself, without letting you know, I'd have done it. You know that, don't you, Irene?" His eyes besought her to understand.

She Leaned Forward Abruptly. "Why doesn't she come home then?"

"I saw her just once," he answered, picking his words with care. "I'd gone to the address you gave me, but she had left there. I had had her mail forwarded. I had to use detective methods to find her."

She leaned forward abruptly.

"Yes," he said.

"She's—she's sick, Irene."

"Why doesn't she come home then?" Her eyes were frightened.

"She can't, very well." He gazed out of the window.

"Why?" Irene jerked out.

"He laid his hands on hers. "Can you hear the truth, Irene?"

"Yes, yes! What is it?"

"She's going to have a child."

"Oh, merciful God, no!" She sprang to her feet, striking her hand against the tea wagon and crashing a cup to the floor.

"Steady, Irene, steady." He put his arm about her shaking shoulder and forced her into a chair.

She stared at him with wild

Evergreens Found in Warm and Cold Zones

An evergreen is a tree which signed the first flag of the United States green at winter—that is to Colonies. This is said to have been said, the leaves do not fall in autumn the first official flag, and was hoisted, as do the leaves of deciduous evergreen by Washington over his camp in trees. Many evergreens are confederate and by Capt. John Paul Jones (cone-bearing trees), but not Jones over his fleet early in 1776. Confederate evergreens. The 13 red and white stripes, representing the 13 United Colonies, larch is a conifer, but it is not an evergreen with the king's colors, the crosses evergreen.

Spruce is a familiar evergreen. It was the blue canton. The presence of first known as a native of Prussia—these crosses in the blue field meant slat—French, "spruce" and middle that the Colonists were fighting for English "spruce" or "spruce." Spruce their rights as Englishmen. It has an old name for Prussia. Fir is been called a "flag not of separation" old word, long in the language, tion but of protest. In those days always used for the tree; pine is it was often designated as the conifer, also the name of the tree green colors, or the Cambridge flag, which it designates today. The red and white stripes, and is said to have been designed by Washington.

There are evergreens which are not trees. Almost all tropical plants, botanically speaking, are evergreens. The holly is an interesting northern evergreen, much used for decoration purposes at Christmas.

The rhododendron is an evergreen shrub. Its name, according to Webster's New International dictionary, comes from Greek words meaning literally "rose tree." It was so named because of its large flowers.

Other evergreens of the North include certain varieties of the cedar, fir, laurel, etc. The words are all "old"—that is, they have been in the language for centuries, often nearly in the forms we know today as the names of these plants or similar plants.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Miss Allison Delaplaine, Editor, Phone 581.

MRS. GILMORE IS HOSTESS

Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore entertained the members of her own and another bridge club Thursday night at her home on S. Court-st. Following the usual numbers of bridge hands, and the serving of refreshments, the prize for the evening was awarded to Mrs. Leonard Pontius.

CLUB PARTY IS HELD

There were seven tables of 500 in progress Thursday night at a most enjoyable party at the Pick-away Country club. The club house was decorated for the occasion with growing and cut Easter flowers. Two prizes were awarded. The highest score among the women was made by Mrs. Orion King, while Joe Lynch received the prize for holding the highest score among the men. A fine lunch was served about 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Frank Lynch was chairman for the affair.

APRIL FOOL PARTY AT PARISH HOUSE

The meeting of the Lutheran Brotherhood Thursday night at the parish house on E. Mound-st. was an April Fool party. The committee had thought of some tricks, for the guests, but one acted as boomerang and returned to one of the committee, who was forced to "take his own medicine." The guests had been amusing themselves with a punch board, from which each received a little note. These were read aloud and the commands they contained had to be carried out. Those who excelled in carrying out these antics received the prizes, and were John Hummel and George Himrod.

The prize was the privilege of making anyone present, do a stunt. Here it was that the plans of the committee went astray, for the winners chose as their privilege to make Frank Palm, chairman of the committee, eat a bowl of

of the chile con carne, blind folded. They also chose to have Christian Schwarz feed him the soup. It was a very entertaining session.

Another stunt by the committee was to stick their noses through a hole in a screen in front of one of the doors. The olfactory appendage of some were readily recognized, while others without the rest of the familiar faces were a complete mystery. All of this added to the April fool program. Fulton Cryder, was chairman of the program committee. Carl Palm and his Sunday School orchestra furnished the music.

HOSTESS TO INFORMAL PARTY

Mrs. Fred Fissell Jr., was the gracious hostess at an informal bridge party of three tables Wednesday night at her home on E. Mound-st. The guests progressed for five rounds, after which they were served refreshments. The bridge prizes were won by Miss Martha Bartley, Miss Martha List and Mrs. Arthur Steele.

POST EASTER PARTY AT TELEPHONE OFFICES

The employees of the Citizen Telephone Co. enjoyed a very delightful evening Thursday night when they held an after-Lenten party in the social rooms of the Telephone Co. In keeping with Easter season tiny rabbits played a leading role on the place-cards and in the center decorations of the small tables where the guests found their places. Tulips and jonquils in vases were also used to decorate the rooms. Cards were played and various contests were held and the honors were carried off by Miss Blanche Valentine.

Pays 22-Hour Penance

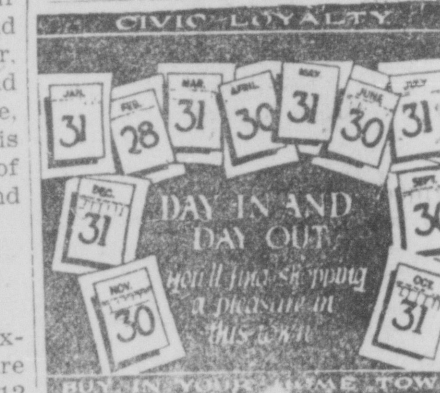

Red Cagle, last year's shining light of West Point's football team, is doing a 22-hour trick in his spare time on the 100-yard stretch where all A. W. O. L. hammer out their penalty. Red missed the Hoboken ferry one night, all due to Mr. Whalen's traffic laws, but the rules at West Point must be obeyed, too.

from two to three o'clock at the home of Mrs. Mary E. Lee in Westerville. The affair will honor Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper, Mrs. Carington T. Marshall, Mrs. Dennis E. Nolan, Mrs. Robert H. Day, Mrs. Thomas A. Jones, Mrs. E. S. Mathias, Mrs. James E. Robinson, Mrs. John T. Brown, Mrs. Clarence J. Brown, Mrs. Gilbert Bettman, Mrs. John C. Speaks, Mrs. William Morgan, Mrs. Frank E. No Sound-Proof Room Has Been Developed Henry Bernstein, French play wright, hired a builder to build him a soundproof room in his apartment. The room cost 175,000 francs and failed to be sound-proof, so Bernstein sued the builder and recovered 37,000 francs damages.

Publisher Horace Stokes discussing the case, said:

"Writers are always looking in vain for sound-proof rooms. You remember the sound-proof room that Carlyle built on top of his little house in Chelsea. It wasn't sound proof at all."

"Carlyle couldn't sleep in his Chelsea home on account of a rooster in a neighbor's garden. At last, worn out, a nervous wreck, he went to the neighbor and said:

"For the love of heaven kill that rooster of yours, or it will kill me. Look at my bloodshot eyes and shaking hands. The bird crows all night and I never get a wink of sleep any more."

"No, no, Mr. Carlyle," said the neighbor, "it don't—it can't crow all night."

"Perhaps not," said Carlyle, but when it isn't crowing I lie there, breathless and tense, waiting for it to begin again."

Affected Great Actor

Lucy Cable Bickle, in her biography of her father, George W. Cable, includes a letter in which the novelist described his meeting with John Drew, the actor:

"Margaret and I," reads the letter, "went last night to hear John Drew in 'The Second in Command.' . . . We went behind the stage after the play and saw him and his daughter. He said: 'This is the first time I've had a chance to tell you how I cried over 'The Cavalier'—over the captain's death. I said: 'You make me proud. Did you cry?' He said: 'Cry? I howled!'"—Detroit News.

GILMORE HOSTESS

Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore entertained the members of her own and another bridge club Thursday night at her home on S. Court-st. Following the usual numbers of bridge hands, and the serving of refreshments, the prize for the evening was awarded to Mrs. Leonard Pontius.

CLUB PARTY IS HELD

There were seven tables of 500 in progress Thursday night at a most enjoyable party at the Pick-away Country club. The club house was decorated for the occasion with growing and cut Easter flowers. Two prizes were awarded. The highest score among the women was made by Mrs. Orion King, while Joe Lynch received the prize for holding the highest score among the men. A fine lunch was served about 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Frank Lynch was chairman for the affair.

APRIL FOOL PARTY AT PARISH HOUSE

The meeting of the Lutheran Brotherhood Thursday night at the parish house on E. Mount-st. was an April Fool party. The committee had thought of some tricks for the guests, but one acted as boomerang and returned to one of the committee, who was forced to "take his own medicine." The guests had been amusing themselves with a punch board, from which each received a little note. These were read aloud and the commands they contained had to be carried out. Those who excelled in carrying out these antics received the prizes, and were John Hummel and George Himrod.

The prize was the privilege of making anyone present do a stunt. Here it was that the plans of the committee went astray, for the winners chose as their privilege to make Frank Palm, chairman of the committee, eat a bowl of man of the committee, at a bowl of

of the chile con carne, blind folded. They also chose to have Christian Schwarz feed him the soup. It was a very entertaining session.

Another stunt by the committee was to stick their noses through a hole in a screen in front of one of the doors. The olfactory appendage of some were readily recognized, while others without the rest of the familiar faces were a complete mystery. All of this added to the April fool program. Fulton Cryder, was chairman of the program committee. Carl Palm and his Sunday School orchestra furnished the music.

Frank Palm was chairman of the lunch committee. The others were C. E. Roof, Turney Ross, Lyman Riffe, Webb Steinhauer, C. F. Seitz, Clarence Stein, Jim Stout, Dewey Speakman and Albert Krimmel.

POST EASTER PARTY AT TELEPHONE OFFICES

The employees of the Citizen Telephone Co. enjoyed a very delightful evening Thursday night when they held an after-Lenten party in the social rooms of the Telephone Co. In keeping with the Easter season tiny rabbits played a leading role on the place-cards and in the center decorations of the small tables where the guests found their places. Tulips and jonquils in vases were also used to decorate the rooms. Cards were played and various contests were held and the honors were carried man of the committee, eat a bowl of

ROTARY PLAYERS REMAIN

The Paul Brown Rotary Players remain at the Grand theater Friday night for a complete change of program. The screen feature, "13 Washington Square" will star Alice Joyce, Jean Herscholt and ZaSu Pitts in a thrilling mystery play. The second chapter of "The Mystery Rider" also will be shown.

HEAD OF THE FAMILY?

Are you the head of your family, or are you one of those subject mortals whose every move and rule of conduct is moderated by someone higher up? If you are one of the latter, and you would like to turn the tables, you might learn something tonight down at the Cliftona theatre where "The Head of the Family," a Gotham production, holds sway.

The picture details the trials and tribulations of a plumber who is hired by a wealthy, hen-pecked father, to manage his family during his absence. That he succeeds is evidenced in the fact that he finally marries the wealthy man's daughter, puts his house in perfect order and calls it a day.

William Virginia Lee Corbin is the daughter in the case, William Russell is the man who is promoted from plumbing to family manager and Mickey Bennett, Richard Walzing, William Welsh, and Agnes Herring make up the rest of the cast. They very deftly and with much gusto contribute a riot of laughs to this entertaining farce. The story is by George Randolph Chester and ran in the Saturday Evening Post. Peter Milne who adapted the piece made an excellent job of the comedy construction. Joseph C. Boyle is to be complimented for his direction. If you like a good laugh don't miss this picture.

Varieties of Spiders

Have Communal Nests

Some spiders live in large colonies in close intimacy not only with spiders of different species, but with other insects. In Mexico in regions at an altitude of 2,500 yards, spiders are found that live in societies and construct common nests of large dimensions like the nests of ants and bees. The nests are in great demand among the natives of the country, who take fragments of them and hang them about their rooms as traps for flies and mosquitoes.

The nests are surrounded with threads that serve as hiding places in which the spiders lie in wait for their prey. All the insects caught are used as food for the colony. In the nests, which the spiders never leave for any reason or under any circumstances, are piled heaps of flies, yet the nests are kept with the utmost cleanliness. The public hygiene of the colony is looked after by a small creature treated with scrupulous respect by all the spiders. This infinitesimal being does for spider communities what the blind white wood louse does for ants. It is of the family of the Tardigrades; it lives in the common nest with all the spiders, nourishing itself on everything rejected and cast off by them.—Washington Star.

"KONJOLA WORKED WONDERS FOR ME," SAYS TOLEDO MAN

Stomach Trouble and Nervousness Yield To Advanced Medicine; Catarrh, Too, Is Relieved.

MR. JACOB ROSENBERG. "Konjola worked wonders for me after I had abandoned hope of ever being well again," said Mr. Jacob Rosenberg, 2114 Elm St., Toledo.

"For a long time I had been the helpless victim of a disordered stomach. My appetite left me and sometimes the sight of food nauseated me. I suffered almost immediately after eating the slightest of foods from gas bloating. My liver became lazy and sluggish. My system was filled with bile. Nasal catarrh added considerable trouble.

"It was a desperate case that I asked Konjola to work on. But Konjola did not fail. Konjola went right to work. It cleansed and strengthened my system. My stomach resumed its natural functioning. My appetite increased. My digestion was restored. The catarrhal condition has been almost completely dried up. I know that what Konjola has done for me it will do for others, and I praise it to everyone."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, by Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

The Great Fat Fight Shifts Battleground

By Prudence Goodhue

AND may the best advertiser win! Raging through the advertising columns of the magazines and press of the country is one of the most interesting "fat" wars in years. Rising in defense of America's sweet tooth, embattled sugar interests have launched a valiant counter-attack against the tobacco interests which would supplant the sweet habit.

The psychology of fear, the clutching horror of fat and its complement of homeliness which haunts womankind, is the basis of the anti-sweet campaign. On the other hand the sugar people cite football coaches and physical culture experts on the energizing virtues of their product.

To the matron who holds a wholesome desire to retain that school-girl figure but who is, nevertheless, not easily stampeded, these conflicting advertising campaign statements may present a puzzling problem.

The fact is that both camps are light-up to a certain point.

We suggest a middle course: watch the diet that it gets a sufficiency of energy-giving sugar without too much fat in its other elements. For instance, where whipped cream is called for, use whipped evaporated milk. Thus you may have a very rich tasting whipping substance which contains all the salts and vitamins of whole milk without the fat penalty attaching to rich whipped cream.

Here are some suggested dessert recipes which will be helpful:

Strawberry Mousse
1 qt. strawberries 1 cup evaporated milk heated to the boiling point
1 cup sugar
1 tbsp. lemon juice

Telephone Operator Saves Flaming Town

Wooster, O.—A telephone operator with a cool head in an emergency probably saved the village of Marshallville from destruction when flames destroyed a brick hotel, a frame dance hall, a pool room and a restaurant there recently.

When the fire was reported to Miss Edith Hartwell, operator of the Marshallville exchange, she immediately called the fire chief, who rang the fire bell. But, so ardent were his efforts that the bell rope broke before the bell had so much as tinkled.

The fire was rapidly gaining headway, having started in the dance hall, and every moment lost meant an additional hazard to the village. The fire chief rushed to a telephone to notify Miss Hartwell, who speedily called each volunteer fireman and then summoned additional aid from Doylestown and Orrville.

Vast Wealth Amassed by Old Time Monarchs

Among those in ancient times who could afford to turn over and take another nap in the morning, one of the wealthiest was Ramesses III, according to a writer in the Detroit News. This Egyptian pharaoh some 3,000 years ago was dazzling the known world with his treasures. Diodorus estimated Ramesses' wealth at about 400,000 talents, equivalent to the purchasing power of $10,000,000,000. Croesus, the best known of all rich men, probably was not quite as wealthy as Ramesses, but he was able to give the equivalent of $200,000,000 to the Delphic Oracle as a bid for victory against the Persians. And, be it added, took his defeat like a man. Croesus had a relative, Pythius, who handed Xerxes $24,000,000 one day as a token of his esteem and when Xerxes hesitated, assured him that it was a mere trifle to what he had on hand. Considering that the money would have to be multiplied by 20 to realize its purchasing power today, that was one of the largest gifts ever made.

Solomon's income was equal to $20,000,000 a year. Sardapanolus, Nero, Lucullus, the queen of Sheba and Cleopatra, if alive today, would be respected by some of our richest nabobs. Then there was William de la Pole, who, in the fourteenth century, loaned his king $5,000,000—to tide over a royal embarrassment—and never got it back.

OHIO LADY GLAD TO PRAISE HOYT'S COMPOUND

Mrs. Louise Tandy Takes Great Pride In Telling How Hoyt's Made Her "Well."

Thousands of seekers of health, many of whom have been held in the terrible grip of suffering caused from the horrors of stomach, kidney and liver troubles and rheumatism, neuritis, and disordered bodies are coming every day to Wilder's Drug Store, Circleville, where they are explaining why Hoyt's Compound has performed so many remarkable cures here in this city and surrounding towns.

MRS. LOUISE TANDY.

Mrs. Louise Tandy who resides on Mechanic St., Chillicothe, Ohio, and who is 60 years of age, comes to the front with the following statement in behalf of this great compound:

"Hoyt's Compound is the most wonderful medicine ever in Ohio and I take great pride in recommending it to anyone who suffers," said Mrs. Tandy. "I have been afflicted with female trouble for the past 25 years, stomach in a very bad condition, so bad that I could not sleep at nights. My bowels were very irregular and I had to be taking strong physics all of the time. My appetite grew steadily worse every day until finally I didn't eat enough to keep me going. The first bottle of Hoyt's Compound gave me relief. I no longer suffer from female trouble. My stomach is in much better shape and my bowels are regulated so that I feel fine every day. I now have a good appetite, sleep good every night, and to be brief, Hoyt's Compound has made me well again."

Hoyt's Compound is being introduced daily at Wilder's Drug Store, Circleville, Ohio. Also for sale at all well stocked drug stores.—Adv.

SLOUCHY FIGURE MAY UPSET ENTIRE SYSTEM

Unless There is Exercise Posture will be Incorrect and Important Muscles will Become Soft and Lax in their Functions, Says Medical Authority.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE of the common pieces of advice I give you is this: Get plenty of rest, sleep, good food, fresh air, sunlight and exercise.

You can see the reason for each of these factors of good health. But let me ask you a question: Why should you exercise?

DR. COPELAND

That may seem like a senseless question, but is it? Really, why should a person, who desires to be strong and healthy, take systematic physical exercise?

The other day I heard a masseuse say to her patient, "Your arms are soft and flabby. You should take exercise to develop them."

To one who has no work to do with the arms, no lifting, no boxing to do, to have flabby arm muscles is of small consequence. If all the other muscles are hard and strong, the state of the arm muscles would make little difference.

But here is the trouble: Unless you exercise every day, keeping the blood in circulation, keeping the figure upright and trim, there will be trouble after a while. It won't be long before the abdominal walls relax, permitting the internal organs to sag from their proper places.

Nature intended man to have his body that the back muscles in prime condition, in order that the backbone would be held in the upright position.

It was planned to have the head held in such position as to take pressure off the big blood vessels and nerves of the neck. If you permit your figure to slouch, the chin falls on the chest and there is sure to be interference with the important "triangles" of the neck.

The abdominal wall is thin in spots. Unless the muscles overlying these places are firm and strong, there may be a break. Weakness of the muscles, or undue use of the muscles here, may cause a break which results in what we call "hernia" or in the common speech, "rupture."

Unless there is regular exercise, the muscles of the diaphragm, which has an important part in breathing, may grow weak. Then there may be shallow breathing and ill health in consequence.

These abdominal muscles and the powerful diaphragm have an important part in helping to circulate the blood and fluids of the body. They help the intestines to perform their function.

Unless there is such general exercise as to keep all the muscles in first-class condition, those that support the walls of the intestines themselves won't be able to do their work. You can see how necessary this action is.

The bones of the pelvis are held in place, as indeed are all the joints, by certain ligaments. Unless the muscles are strong, the ligaments are not helped to do their work. In the case of the pelvis this condition may result in certain neuralgic pains.

In the big blood vessels, especially in the veins, are muscles which must be in normal state, if they are to help the circulation. The heart is almost all muscular tissue.

Without systematic exercise the muscles cannot be kept in condition to do their work. Don't fail to do your part to keep them strong. Incidentally, you keep your figure and good looks.

SLOUCHY FIGURE MAY UPSET ENTIRE SYSTEM

Unless There is Exercise Posture will be Incorrect and Important Muscles will Become Soft and Lax In their Functions, Says Medical Authority.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE of the common pieces of advice I give you is this: Get plenty of rest, sleep, good food, fresh air, sunlight and exercise. You can see the reason for each of these factors of good health. But let me ask you a question: Why should you exercise?

That may seem like a senseless question, but is it? Really, why should a person, who desires to be strong and healthy, take systematic physical exercise?

The other day I heard a masseuse say to her patient, "Your arms are soft and flabby. You should take exercise to develop them."

To one who has no work to do with the arms, no lifting, no boxing to do, to have flabby arm muscles is of small consequence. If all the other muscles are hard and strong, the state of the arm muscles would make little difference.

But here is the trouble: Unless you exercise every day, keeping the blood in circulation, keeping the figure upright and trim, there will be trouble after a while. It won't be long before the abdominal walls relax, permitting the internal organs to sag from their proper places.

Nature intended man to have his body muscles tight and firm, so to keep the abdominal organs in place. It was intended to have the back muscles in prime condition, in order that the backbone would be held in the upright position.

It was planned to have the head held in such position as to take pressure off the big blood vessels of the neck. If you permit your figure to slouch, the chin falls on the chest and there is sure to be interference with the important "triangles" of the neck.

The abdominal wall is thin in spots. Unless the muscles overlying these places are firm and strong, there may be a break. Weakness of the muscles, or undue use of the muscles here, may cause a bulge which results in what we call "hernia," or in the common speech, "rupture."

Unless there is regular exercise, the muscles of the diaphragm, which has an important part in breathing, may grow weak. Then there may be shallow breathing and ill health in consequence.

These abdominal muscles and the powerful diaphragm have an important part in helping to circulate the blood and fluids of the body. They help the intestines to perform their function.

Unless there is such general exercise as to keep all the muscles in first-class condition, those that support the walls of the intestines themselves won't be able to do their work. You can see how necessary this action is.

The bones of the pelvis are held in place, as indeed are all the joints, by certain ligaments. Unless the muscles are strong, the ligaments are not helped to do their work. In the case of the pelvis this condition may result in certain neuralgic pains.

In the big blood vessels, especially in the vein, are muscles which must be in normal state. If they are to help the circulation, The heart is almost all muscular tissue.

Without systematic exercise the muscles cannot be kept in condition to do their work. Don't fail to do your part to keep them strong. Incidentally, you keep your figure and good looks.

Vast Wealth Amassed by Old Time Monarchs

Among those in ancient times who could afford to turn over and take another nap in the morning, one of the wealthiest was Ramses III, according to a writer in the Detroit News. This Egyptian pharaoh some 3,000 years ago was dazzling the known world with his treasures. Diodorus estimated Ramses' wealth at about 400,000 talents, equivalent to the purchasing power of $10,000,000,000. Croesus, the best known of all rich men, probably was not quite as wealthy as Ramses, but he was able to give the equivalent of $200,000,000 to the Delphic Oracle as a bid for victory against the Persians. And, he it added, took his defeat like a man. Croesus had a relative, Pythias, who handed Xerxes $24,000,000 one day as a token of his esteem and when Xerxes hesitated, assured him that it was a mere trifle to what he had on hand. Considering that the money would have to be multiplied by 20 to realize its purchasing power today, that was one of the largest gifts ever made.

Solomon's income was equal to $20,000,000 a year. Sardanapalus, Nero, Lucullus, the queen of Sheba and Cleopatra, if alive today, would be suspected by some of our richest nabobs. Then there was William the Red, who in the fourteenth century joined his King $5,000,000 to ride over a royal embarrassment—and never got it back.

OHIO LADY GLAD TO PRAISE HOYT'S COMPOUND

Mrs. Louise Tandy Takes Great Pride In Telling How Hoyt's Made Her "Well."

Thousands of seekers of health, many of whom have been held in the terrible grip of suffering caused from the horrors of stomach, kidney and liver troubles and rheumatism, neuritis, and disordered bodies are coming every day to Wilder's Drug Store, Circleville, where they are explaining why Hoyt's Compound has performed so many remarkable cures here in this city and surrounding towns.

Mrs. Louise Tandy, who resides on Mechanic St., Chillicothe, Ohio, and who is 60 years of age, comes to the front with the following statement in behalf of this great compound:

"Hoyt's Compound is the most wonderful medicine ever in Ohio and I take great pride in recommending it to anyone who suffers," said Mrs. Tandy. "I have been afflicted with female trouble for the past 25 years, stomach in a very bad condition, so bad that I could not sleep at nights. My bowels were very irregular and I had to be taking strong physics all of the time. My appetite grew steadily worse every day until finally I didn't eat enough to keep me going. The first bottle of Hoyt's Compound gave me relief. I no longer suffer from female trouble. My stomach is in much better shape and my bowels are regulated so that I feel fine every day. I now have a good appetite, sleep good every night, and to be brief, Hoyt's Compound has made me well again."

Hoyt's Compound is being introduced daily at Wilder's Drug Store, Circleville, Ohio. Also for sale at all well stocked drug stores.—A.C.V.

ROTARY PLAYERS REMAIN

The Paul Brown Rotary Players remain at the Grand theater Friday night for a complete change of program. The screen feature, "13 Washington Square" will star Alice Joyce, Jean Hersholt and ZaSu Pitts in a thrilling mystery play. The second chapter of "The Mystery Rider" also will be shown.

HEAD OF THE FAMILY?

Are you the head of your family, or are you one of those abject mortals whose every move and rule of conduct is moderated by someone higher up? If you are one of the latter, and you would like to turn the tables, you might learn something tonight down at the Cliftona theatre where "The Head of the Family," a Gotham production, holds sway.

The picture details the trials and tribulations of a plumber who is hired by a wealthy, hen-pecked father, to manage his family during his absence. That he succeeds is evidenced in the fact that he finally marries the wealthy man's daughter, puts his house in perfect order, and calls it a day.

Winthorne Virginia Lee Corbin is the daughter in the case; William Russell is the hen-man who is promoted from plumbing to family manager; and Mickey Bennett, Richard Walling, William Welsh, and Aggie Herring make up the rest of the cast. They very deftly and with much gusto contribute a riot of laughs to this entertaining farce. The story is by George Randolph Chester and ran in the Saturday Evening Post. Peter Milne who adapted the piece made an excellent job of the comedy construction. Joseph C. Boyle is to be complimented for his direction. If you like a good laugh don't miss this picture.

Varieties of Spiders

Have Communal Nests

Some spiders live in large colonies in close intimacy not only with spiders of different species, but with other insects. In Mexico in regions at an altitude of 2,500 yards, spiders are found that live in societies and construct common nests of large dimensions like the nests of ants and bees. The nests are in great demand among the natives of the country, who take fragments of them and hang them about their rooms as traps for flies and mosquitoes.

The nests are surrounded with threads that serve as hiding places in which the spiders lie in wait for their prey. All the insects caught are used as food for the colony. In the nests, which the spiders never leave for any reason or under any circumstances, are piled heaps of flies, yet the nests are kept with the utmost cleanliness. The public hygiene of the colony is looked after by a small creature treated with scrupulous respect by all the spiders. This infinitesimal being does for spider communities what the blind white wood mouse does for ants. It is of the family of the Latricidae; it lives in the common nest with all the spiders, nourishing itself on everything rejected and cast off by them.—Washington Star.

"KONJOLA WORKED WONDERS FOR ME," SAYS TOLEDO MAN

Stomach Trouble and Nervousness Yield To Advanced Medicine; Catarrh, Too, Is Relieved.

MR. JACOB ROSENBERGER.

"Konjola worked wonders for me after I had abandoned hope of ever being well again," said Mr. Jacob Rosenberger, 2114 Elm St., Toledo.

"For a long time I had been the helpless victim of a disordered stomach. My appetite left me and sometimes the sight of food nauseated me. I suffered almost immediately after eating the lightest of foods from gas bloating. My liver became lazy and sluggish. My system was filled with bile. Nasal catarrh added considerable trouble.

"It was a desperate case that I asked Konjola to work on. But Konjola did not fail. Konjola went right to work. It cleansed and strengthened my system. My stomach resumed its natural functioning. My appetite increased. My digestion was restored. The catarrhal condition has been almost completely dried up. I know that what Konjola has done for me it will do for others, and I praise it to everyone."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, by Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

The Great Fat Fight Shifts Battleground

By Prudence Goodhue

ND may the best advertiser win!

Raging through the advertising columns of the magazines and press of the country is one of the most interesting "ad" wars in years. Rising in defense of America's sweet tooth, embattled sugar interests have launched a valiant counter-attack against the tobacco interests which would supplant the sweet habit.

The psychology of fear, the clutching horror of fat and its complement of homeliness which haunts womankind, is the basis of the anti-sweet campaign. On the other hand the sugar people cite football coaches and physical culture experts on the energizing virtues of their product.

To the matron who holds a wholesome desire to retain that school-girl figure but who is, nevertheless, not easily stampeded, these conflicting advertising campaign statements may present a puzzling problem.

The fact is that both camps are right—up to a certain point.

We suggest a middle course: watch the diet that it gets a sufficiency of energy-giving sugar without too much fat in its other elements. For instance, where whipped cream is called for, use whipped evaporated milk. Thus you may have a very rich tasting whipping substance which contains all the salts and vitamins of whole milk without the fat penalty attaching to rich whipped cream.

Here are some suggested dessert recipes which will be helpful:

Strawberry Mousse
1 qt. strawberries 1 cup evaporated milk
8 sugar milk heated to the boiling point
1 tsp. lemon juice

Select sound well ripened berries. This is important that desired flavor and color be obtained. Hull, wash, drain and mash. Press through a coarse sieve. There should be 1½ cups pulp and juice. Add sugar and lemon juice. Let stand in refrigerator 20 minutes to chill and dissolve sugar. Chill milk in bowl surrounded with crushed ice and salt. Whip until stiff. Fold cold strawberry mixture lightly but thoroughly into milk. Pack mixture in molds. Wrap strips of cloth around mold where lid fits on. Rub cloth with soft butter. This forms seal which prevents salt water entering. Bury in 1:3 salt-ice mixture three or four hours. May also be frozen in mechanical refrigerator. Yield: 5 servings.

Cocoanut Kisses
½ cup evaporated milk ¼ tsp. almond extract
½ cup sugar 2 cups shredded cocoanut
Combine ingredients in order given. Drop from a teaspoon onto a well greased (not buttered) baking pan. Bake in a slow oven (300° F.) 15 minutes. Remove from pan while hot to prevent crushing. Yield: 18 kisses.

Sour Cream Cake
½ cup butter ½ cup evaporated milk
½ cup flour 1 cup baking powder
1 egg 1 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt Grating of 1 lemon
2 tsp. vinegar

S. T. Ruggles Accepts Chairmanship For Philippine Day Observance Here

S. T. Ruggles, president of the Second National bank, has accepted the local chairmanship for the observance of Philippine Day on May 1. The request that he serve his community in this capacity is as follows:

"May 1st, 1898, Dewey steamed into Manila Harbor, sank the Spanish fleet, reduced the fortress at Cavite, and raised the American flag."

"May 1st, 1927, Leonard Wood, Governor General, appealed to the American nation to come to his aid in a campaign that, after years of quiet unostentatious devotion on the part of American and Philippine medical men, had resulted in the curing of 1,000 of the 12,000 lepers in the islands and held promise of complete solution of the world's age-old curse and its eradication from these islands."

"Thus America has ever made history—thus she has ever revealed goodwill and kindness—not by echoing words, but by the work of soldiers and statesmen with goodwill in their hearts and mercy and helpfulness in their hands."

"Leonard Wood did not live to see the finish of this, his last fight, but what he had set his hand to others are carrying on and some of the nation's most prominent men and women have taken up his crusade."

"He asked for a fund of $2,000,000 for scientific research—for laboratories—for scientists to go out and extend aid to the little handful of doctors who, under the guidance and inspiration of an American leprologist of eminent rank, Dr. H. Windsor Wade, are waging a thrilling and successful fight."

"The response has been instantaneous. $1,000,000 has been contributed by 15,000 people. Construction of new buildings, of entire new units, of one completely new leprosarium have already begun."

"To the end that this gift of healing from America to her wards in the tropics may be something more than the mere handing out of doles—to the end that history may record that 'once upon a time' a great nation set aside a day, and named it after little brown people who had found refuge under that nation's flag, selecting for this occasion the very anniversary of the day when great ships and bustling guns had rushed to the thunderous rescue of these bonded people—to those ends the entire nation is invited to an informal observance of May 1st, 1929 as Philippine Day—and Americans everywhere are invited to have in heart the grave and solemn responsibilities that go, inescapably, with administering the affairs and lives of a dependent people."

"That kindly thinking may give tangible bond for its kindness, every town, village and city in the United States is invited to share in erecting this living memorial in life saving to the memory of a great American soldier who spent the full round of his life in service to his country—and a large part

Denver Doctor Teaches Russians To Heal Sick

Dr. Albert W. Dewey of Denver, Col., medical director for Near East Relief in the Caucasus, visits an orphan girl who is now conducting a clinic in a Caucasian village. This girl is one of 150 graduates from the only training school for women nurses in Southern Russia founded and maintained by the American philanthropy at Leningrad, Armenia, most of whom are now fighting Oriental diseases in Armenian Red Cross clinics.

of that life in writing the pages of a glorious colonial history in Cuba and the Philippines.

"It will remain for each town to say to what degree it may care to share in this work; the main consideration is that every town shall be a participant. A hundred dollars from one community will mean quite as much of good intention as ten thousand dollars from some other and larger—all that is asked is some participation—an agreement from your town to join with the others, and a gathering together of some funds."

"Will you be our chairman for your own community? We ask no arduous duties of you—we suggest that you form a small committee to assist you, and collect such a sum as may be obtained readily and without embarrassment to your or others."

"If it were physically possible for any member of this committee to see you in person he would tell you what an opportunity he considers this to spread a gospel of goodwill between America and her wards—and what a thrilling opportunity to have a vital share in wiping out one of the last remaining and oldest of the world's scourges."

"Since that is not possible will you not consider this, the only means we have of communicating with you, as a very personal message and as assurance from all of us that the cause is an unusual and deserving one."

"On May 1st, 1929 announcement of these gifts will be made throughout the country by radio from a national dinner in the Hall of Nations of the Washington hotel, Washington D. C., an announcement of the fact that 31 years after Manila Harbor and Dewey—America—all of America reached out to these people we took under our care that day arms laden with healing and mercy."

MAKES GOOD

McKinley Stinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stinson and a graduate of Perry Hi, has made good with the Standard Oil Co. On leaving here after his graduation, he went to Columbus to seek employment expecting later to enter Ohio State University. But he secured work in the office of the Standard Oil Co. and that changed his plan for the future. The Standard Oil manager saw that he was a self made boy and gave him a chance to make good and last Monday he went to Cleveland to enter the main office of the company and will be assistant editor and cartoonist for the two journals which the company owns. This is a very responsible position and also commands a handsome salary.

Mrs. Ireland Gott of Elyria, was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Vaughn.

Currents of Great Rivers
There is no stream which has a regular current of 60 miles an hour, or even half that. The lower Amazon flows at a rate of three miles an hour. The Mississippi, in about three and a half miles an hour. The Congo has for many miles above its mouth a current of about seven miles an hour, the impetus of its great falls extending for a great distance below them. The Nile, similarly influenced, moves for a long distance at nine miles an hour.

Health Secrets
More and more we are learning to rely upon nature, rather than upon medicines, for health. If we all followed nature's laws most of our serious diseases would disappear. Certainly the so-called "diseases of civilization"—affections of the heart and nervous system—would be abolished. Sunlight, fresh air, exercise, right food, avoidance of worry, and the prompt repair of any injury or defect—these are practically all anyone need to maintain perfect health.—Dr. Fred H. Albee in the American Magazine.

Bread—Man's First Solid Food and Always His Best

If it weren't for your grocer

If you and I had to buy our groceries as we need them, direct from the manufacturers, chances are we would always get stuck at top prices. And then, think of the bother and worry! To buy right we'd have to study the markets of the world.

Every product that we purchase is tied close to every other product in price. Every product obeys the law of supply and demand.

Let us be glad that the grocer studies our food economies for us and furnishes us with quality goods like Wallace's Twin-Loaf bread at the right price. It is but a part of the service he performs for us.
